Book Discussion Seminars

Open to the Community!

A bagel, a good book and a leisurely Sunday morning, what else goes better together? Join us for an engaging opportunity!

Adult education takes on many shapes and forms. Here at Central Synagogue, our long-standing Sunday book brunch discussions have been a core gathering that enrich our minds and open our hearts. Each book is carefully selected by our Spiritual Leader to foster our educational growth; we read a wide variety of books, both fiction and non-fiction. The diversity of topics allows us to focus on major issues that are of relevance to us all, whether the subjects come from treatments of our history, liturgy, philosophy, culture, folklore, or tradition. Why use a book for this? An author can speak to us in greater depth than an hour lecture with questions at the end can provide. Our open-dialogue discussions allow us to share our thoughts with friends while we reflect on a wide range of ideas and subjects. These Sunday brunch gatherings, with all their informality, are in fact the cornerstones of our adult education program.

Please join us anytime! It is not necessary to have read the book. Everyone is invited to sit in and participate, or just sit back and listen.
